ANNUAL REPORT

OF THE

Superintending School Committee of Gilford, N. H.

FOR THE YEAR ENDING MARCH, 1860.

District No. 1. The summer term was taught by Miss Olive J. Merrill. Faithfulness on the part of the teacher, studiness and self respect on the part of the pupils secured an excellent school. Not an instance of tardiness is noticed during the term.—T.

Winter. Commenced by Mr. R. H. Sanborn with fine prospects of success ; but after continuing two weeks the school house, unfortunately, was burnt, and the school terminated.—T.

No. 2. Summer. Miss Sarah P. Page. The committee made but one visit to this school the term being but 4 weeks. The teacher appeared interested in her work ; good order was observed. The pupils were quiet and studious.—T.

Winter. Mr. Joseph Plummer. This term commenced with much interest, which was sustained during the term, on the part of both teacher and scholars. Discipline mild but firm. A good school.—T.

No. 3. Summer. Miss Emily S. Potter. This school was under good discipline. The pupils were attentive, and made fair progress in their studies. The teacher appeared to love her employment, and success attended her efforts.—T.

Winter. Mr. Daniel Thing. This was Mr. Thing's first effort in teaching. His success was fair, and with more experience, he undoubtedly, will become a fine teacher. In this district there are some good scholars.—T.

No. 4. Summer. This district has two departments, sometimes three. The 1st as senior department, under the instruction of Miss E. J. Pillsbury. Enjoyed what was very desirable in a teacher, kindness, firmness, thoroughness, the outside influences, habits of amusement &c., were somewhat detrimental to rapid proficiency. Good order and thoroughness were the marked characteristics of the school.

SMITH.

2d department. Miss A. G. Glines. In some respects this primary department was like a swarm of bees, and although they did not work themselves all of them, they did make work for the teacher. The opening of the school was confusion, but under the patient and untiring efforts of the teacher, order came out chaos and quietude out of restlessness.

SMITH.

Winter. Senior department Wm. Hazelton. This term opened well and for a time the prospects were promising, subsequently, habits of indolence and irregularity appeared in some instances, and want of order in others, together operating unfavorably upon the school. The teacher seemed to devote himself to the interests of the school, had the scholars manifested as much interest for themselves, this would have been an excellent school. This department needs a superior teacher both summer and winter. SMITH.

Winter. 2d department. Miss A. G. Glines. A great improvement from the summer term, presenting this conviction to the Committee, that especially primary departments are managed more successfully by teachers well acquainted with the scholars. This school was orderly, quiet and made good proficiency. SMITH.

No. 5. Summer. Miss Olive J. Merrill. The teacher of this school has well and faithfully performed her duty, as is most evident from the good order and rapid progress of her pupils. A good school.

Winter. Mr. A. St. C. Smith. This school is quite small numbering only about 17 scholars in all, and many of these tardy and inconstant. The order has been good, and the advancement as great as might reasonably be expected under the circumstances, Mr. Smith did well and with a little more experience will make a fine teacher.

No. 6. One term only has been kept in this district during the past year. Miss Abbie N. Tuttle. This is a small, quiet, orderly school. The scholars are generally quite small, but have made commendable progress. A good school.

No. 7. Summer and Winter. Miss Julia A. Davis. The summer and most of the winter terms have been marked by good order, propriety, and with a good degree of advancement. Miss Davis is a faithful, thorough, experienced teacher. I am sorry to say that the harmony and interest of the latter part of the winter term was somewhat disturbed by a cause which is well known in the district. It should be remembered that the school room in school hours, should not be made the arena of contention, and that the best interests of the school demand that it be suppressed as soon as possible.

No. 8. Summer. Annette E. Russell. The teacher was untiring in her endeavors, and considering the number of her scholars, she was very successful. Some of the pupils made admirable progress.—T.

Winter. Mr. Charles C. Watson. Mr. Watson is a competent faithful teacher. His school was well governed, and thoroughness was the characteristic of his teaching. The scholars were deeply interested in their studies and made rapid advancement.—T.

No. 9. Summer. Miss Maria S. Hanaford. Under the guidance of their mild and faithful teacher, the scholars made good improvement. The school appeared quiet and under good discipline.—T.

Winter. Mr. J. R. Morrill. The ability and experience of Mr. M. places him among our first teachers. The school was orderly and good proficiency was made.—T.

No. 10. Summer. Miss M. M. Rogers. This school made good proficiency, its order and habits of study were manifestly the fruits of former terms and the deep interest taken by the members of the district as well as the untiring efforts of the teacher. Happy for young and inexperienced teachers to find well disciplined schools on which to make their first experiments. SMITH.

Winter. Mr. J. R. Caverly. This term commenced and closed well. The order, advancement, and general satisfaction were alike good. The examination by the Sup. Com. was highly pleasing and those that attended the exhibition the last day witnessed rare attainments found in common schools in Gilford or out. SMITH.

No. 11. Daniel H. Rowe. There has been one term during the year, and that but 5 weeks. The school is small and the scholars not far advanced. There was a good interest manifested by the teacher, and success attended his efforts. The pupils made good improvement considering the shortness of the term.—T.

No. 12. Summer and Winter. Miss L. A. Morrill. This school is still small, too small to get up much interest on number. The teacher appeared to labor incessantly and several scholars made good improvement, others did not succeed so well, on account of irregularity in attendance.

SMITH.

No 13. Summer. Senior department. Miss Marion L. W. Cole. This school is quite large and difficult for most females to interest and govern. Many teachers, male or female, who would keep good schools in the back town districts, would utterly fail in this or other village districts. Miss Cole had taught several schools before this, with good success, but like many of her predecessors she lacked in government, and in inspiring the minds of her scholars with as much interest as was desirable to herself and others. Notwithstanding this, many of them made fair improvement, and most of the others would doubtless have done the same, had it not been for their unaccountable tardiness and irregularity.

Sum. & Win. Second department. Mrs. J. Bailey. This school is orderly, pleasant, and highly interesting. Mrs. Bailey with her usual tact and energy inspires the minds of her little scholars with much confidence and interest. Hence their progress is rapid.

Primary department. Summer and Winter. Miss Minnie A. Bailey. This little school is made up of small children, just commencing their alphabet and reading words of one and two syllables. Miss Bailey exhibits in the performance of her pleasant duty, a good degree of tact, skill and perseverance, and consequently her little scholars have made great improvement.

Summer. Senior department. Mr. Charles Harris. This school is large and appeared on my first visit at the commencement, like what used to be termed in the western states, a "loud school," for many of the scholars both whispered and studied aloud without seeming to think themselves disorderly. Of course the school-room was a perfect bedlam, confusion worse confounded. On my second visit near the close of the school good order prevailed, and a marked interest on the part of both teacher and scholars was apparent.

No. 14. Miss O. J. Merrill. There has been but one term during the year, which was taught in autumn. Miss M. is one of our most compe-ent and experienced female teachers. The scholars respected themselves and respected their teacher—good order was observed and good improvement made.—T.

REMARKS.

Fellow Townsmen. The superintending school committee in submitting to you their annual report, would gratefully acknowledge the Divine superintendence over our educational interests. No fatal epidemics have interrupted our schools, nor prevailing sickness prevented a general attendance.

While we regret to say that the evils referred to in the last annual report, have not been all removed, we rejoice in a general progress, and indications of ultimate success. A want of harmony in text books, lack of parental co-operation with teachers—kindness on the part of scholars, and in some cases division of feeling and interest with the inhabitants of the district are some of the evils which have operated to lessen the usefulness of our schools, and which we trust will soon be remedied, minor and local interests ought not to embarrass a general good.

The system of our common schools we regard as among the most important of our civil institutions. Our common schools lay the foundation for the perpetuity of our form of government. Educate the masses and our government is safe. To do this our common schools are admirably adopted, children of the rich and the poor have equal rights in the school room; and from the humble district school house, rather than from our seminaries, colleges and other higher institutions of learning go forth the great mass of men and women who are to bear the responsibilities of manufacturing the liberties of our country and of giving character to future generations.

Every member of the community should endeavor to promote the highest good of our schools, parents, especially, should take a deep interest in this subject. The prosperity and success of their children is identified with their own. This depends much upon the advantages they enjoy, and the influences which surround them. Parents should consider it indispensable for convenient school houses, and furnish their children with suitable books and disallow all unnecessary tardiness, and encourage them by their frequent visits during the term of school. These visits not only incite their children, but inspire the teacher with enthusiastic zeal.

The teachers responsibilities are of vast magnitude; scarcely second to any assumed by any class of persons. They are to awaken, strengthen and give discretion to the intellectual forces of the thoughtful mind.—When this is properly done, not only the pupil but the world reaps a rich mental harvest, produced from the labor seed of the faithful instructor; therefore let no one attempt to engage in this work without a consciousness of being suitably qualified to discharge its important duties.

Your committee in their intercourse with the youth of our schools the past year, have endeavored to impress their minds with the importance of studious habits, of intellectual endowments and moral excellence; to inspire them with reasonable hopes of success.

We believe that the prudential committees have in most cases secured the services of competent teachers, who have been untiring in their efforts. We trust that in all our schools commendable progress has been made, and a good degree of intellectual development realized.
